The diagram shows a hierarchical structure. At the top is a house icon representing the source. Four lines connect it to four document icons in the second row. The first document icon has a globe and is connected to three folder icons in the third row. The second document icon is connected to one folder icon in the third row. The third and fourth document icons are not connected to any folder icons. The folder icon connected to the second document icon is further connected to three more folder icons in the fourth row. This illustrates how content is distributed from a central source through multiple levels of users.
